(3) JMESI Distance Learning Program

Course Description & Offering:

In 1992, Congress funded a project to educate military treatment facility (MTF) commanders for the administrative requirement of command. Under guidance from the Department of Defense (DoD), there were a series of studies and a joint service core curriculum was developed. It is used as a guide for curriculum developers and planners to assure the original congressional intent is satisfied. JMESI administers the program. JMESI mission is to provide military healthcare leaders with executive management and professional administrative skills through educational programs, products and services.

Distance-Learning provides a means to address the challenges of achieving and maintaining competency by Military Health System (MHS) leaders. It has the potential to supplement and/or support training in some or all of the Executive Skills Core Curriculum by overcoming some of the obstacles presented at formalized in class training or other venues, namely: geographic constraints; availability of instructors; available student time; budget; and other factors.

Funding:

Online courses so there is no cost associated with taking the various modules.

Process:

Go to: https://jmesi.army.mil/register.aspx. Under Training Opportunities, click on Distance Learning Modules. There is a step by step instruction guide available. Once ready, click on “Access the Online DHA Education and Training Site.”
